- Course title begins with “Sem:”
- “C” or better grade requirement to count toward graduation

Perspective Requirement

The perspective requirement reflects the College of Law's conviction that legal education should expand students' horizons by connecting their studies to the traditions of the liberal arts (i.e. the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences). Perspective courses examine law and lawyers primarily from points of view that are significantly different from the doctrinal and policy analysis taught in standard upper-level courses on various areas of practice... Perspective courses look across doctrinal boundaries, engaging the student in a conversation about the relationships between law and other disciplines; they explore the nature of the American legal system by contrasting it with other legal systems; they discuss the ways in which law and lawyers both shape and are shaped by the liberal arts and the wider culture.

Perspective Requirement

What “Elective” Courses Should I Take?

- Four Good Questions:
 1. What must I know to be a competent, practice-ready lawyer?
 2. What courses will assist me in passing the Bar?
 3. What courses are specific to the area(s) in which I intend to practice?
 4. What courses will I enjoy and learn from?

What “Elective” Courses Should I Take?

- Four Bad Questions:
 1. Is it at a good time?
 2. Will I be called on?
 3. Is there a lot of reading?
 4. Will the exam be easy or hard?
